Dr. Alex Chen is a master of herbs, qi gong and tui-na. He has taught at South Baylo University, Yulin University and Royal University of America as well as teaching numerous professional and continuing education seminars in the U.S. and abroad. His love for Oriental Medicine is evident through his life-long devotion to the profession, and reflected by the passion and dedication he embodies, and the inspiration he provides to his children to pursue the same career path.

Lotus CEU Seminar Comments

"I thought Alex Chen was one of the best lecturers I've heard in a long time. I look forward to taking more classes with him. Although he apologized for his English, I found him very interesting. Also like the historical info he added to the topic." Anonymous

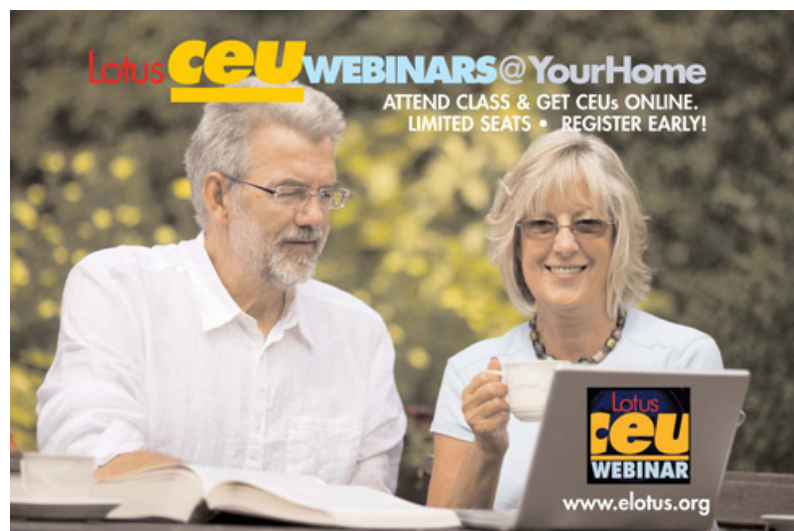

"One of the best aspects of Dr. Chen's teaching for me is how tolerantly he handles questions from questioners that I (would) have less patience for; (it is) a great lesson for me." S.L.

"Dr. Chen appears to have a wealth of knowledge and is a good teacher. I liked the practical demonstrations!" L.T.

"Dui Yao," the art of combining single herbs, is widely recognized for providing exponential effects as each herb enhances the combined therapeutic benefit of the formula. This concept is used frequently today as a model for combining herbal formulas to achieve the most effective care. Since patients rarely present with just one simple textbook condition, why not modify your approach to meet their complex conditions with effective formulas? Join in on this fun and practical workshop: learn how to use and combine 30 primary herbal formulas for the best clinical results.

Upon completion of this course, practitioners will:

- Know applications of the top 30 herbal formulas for everyday use
- Learn disorders that those 30 formulas treat singularly and in combination
- Learn the 'differential diagnosis' of prescribing formulas
